Daylight has Come and Gone

Vancouver Island University's Experience Moving to the New Responsive Design Interface

Vancouver Island University (VIU) is a mid-sized university on Vancouver Island. We have 3 campuses and approximately 17,000 students. Roughly half of our 750 faculty use our Learning Management System in some capacity. In 2017, 39% of course sections created through our registration system were activated in D2L. This is an increase from 34% in 2016, and 27% in 2015.

How Did We Manage the Change to Daylight?

We began communicating with our campus community in November 2016 for a planned April 2017 rollout of Daylight. Over 6 months we held 20 public awareness sessions, reaching approximately 100 faculty.

In addition to public awareness sessions, we used our existing communications platforms to keep our community up to date. This included blog posts, updates to our custom Faculty News widget in Brightspace and announcements embedded in sessions we ran for faculty between November 2016 and April 2017.

We did not message students directly about the change or run Student-focused public awareness sessions, but we put an announcement in a custom widget in Brightspace and updated our student resources to the new interface

How Are We Doing Six Months After Daylight?

Overall, our transition to Daylight was very smooth. Faculty and students embraced the new mobile-responsive design and most feedback has been positive.

We have seen a significant increase in mobile and tablet access to the system this fall over the previous two years for which we have analytics.

Our passive resource update project is still ongoing, but we have recut and posted 72 faculty and student support videos since April 2017.
