

Encountering the Past: Family and Community History

Imogene L. Lim, PhD
Malaspina University-College

21 June 2005
Nikkei Centre

The community of Cumberland

CMA 140-036

CMA 190-036

CMA 140-421

Women

The community of Cumberland

CMA 140-266

CMA 193-070

Families

The community of Cumberland

CMA 193-066

CMA 140-418

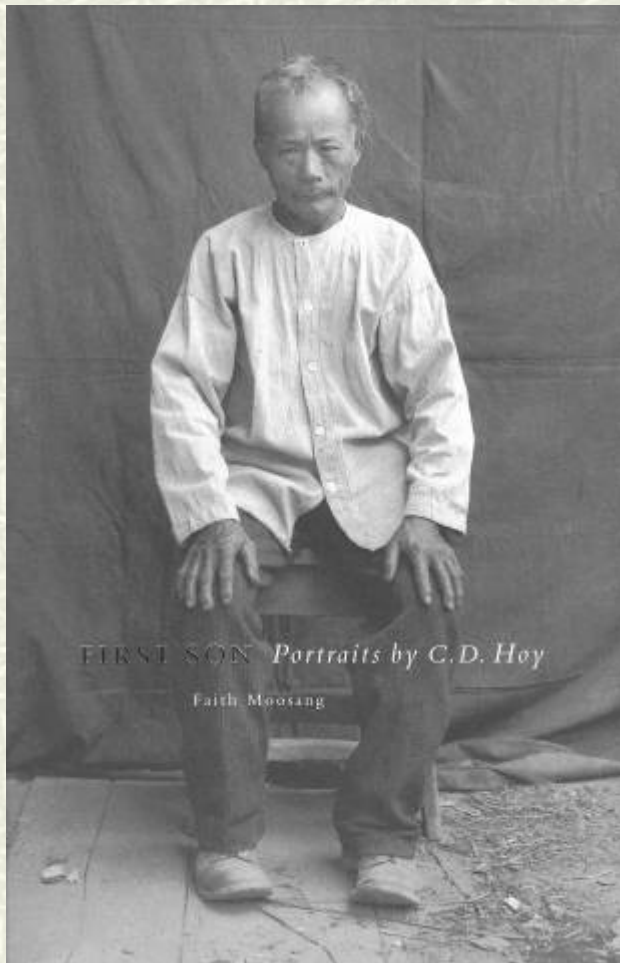

Children

Where are the Chinese women?

Funeral procession. CMA 040-293

C.D. Hoy – First Son

Moosang 1999:12

Moosang 1999:17

Hands

CMA 040-205

A demonstration of physical labour . . .

CMA 040-261

Faces

Their labours etched on their brow . . .

CMA 140-490

Coal mining

CMA 160-001

Chinese miners

Exempt at Union
Mine from working underground

CMA 160-002

Found family

CMA 140-130

Circa 1926-27 CMA 240-012

Among these images, Cumberland is the touchstone of each family's personal history, one that reflects the larger story of these pioneers, whether of Asian or European origin, in Canada.

I have encountered my past among these.